THE JOHN HIBBERDS--Welcomed to San Francisco by American Air Lines. John and Evalena were given special attention all the way out, it being their first experience in flying, and are old enough to celebrate their 68th wedding anniversary.

They thoroughly enjoyed their first plane ride--on a jet, yet!--and arrived at their destination to receive a royal welcome from the air line, a handsome young hostess pinning an orchid corsage on Mrs. Hibberd's coat on their arrival.

The Hibberds are spending the winter with their children out West, their present address being 40446 Robin St., Fremont, Calif., 94538.

We think this is a wonderful picture of Mr. and Mrs. Hibberd, and we congratulate them on their taking their first plane trip as a long one and as one that they enjoyed.

COMPLETION NEARS ON DAM FOR LAKE OF THE HILLS

Allen Lumber Company was nearing completion of its cement and steel structure dam at Wilcox's Point in Weidman this week to create Lake of the Hills, about 100 acres of water on Walker Creek and in the village of Weidman.

Tuesday workmen were completing setting up forms for the south side of the uprights, with pouring of cement of this last major detail scheduled for this week.

Two small piers in the center of the structure remain to be erected, but these are minor details, compared to the huge project of building the main portion of the dam.

All structures are of steel-reinforced cement, and all details are carefully checked by engineering departments and the engineer retained by the Allens.

Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Alton Allen drove to Lansing to take samples of concrete to the Michigan Testing Engineering offices. Tests from concrete in the bottom section were rated above average. These tests are made for breaking strength, and the Allens' dam is being constructed strictly according to all State regulations and tests.

In the near future there will be a stream of water running through the dam, Alton Allen said this week.

The Allen Co. bulldozer is kept busy on clearing and preparing for lake bottom, and on the Drallete 80, to the northwest extremity of the lake, there is a body of water where the bulldozer cleared and sheared off banks, putting sand from bottom up on the sides for beaches.

By next spring it is expected the lake will be completed, and the Allens expect the spring runoff to assist greatly in filling the lake to specified levels.

In the Editor's Mail

Hello, Connie and George: Just a few lines to let you know we arrived back home to California safe and sound. Enjoyed our trip so much. We stopped often for coffee breaks, meals, and stayed nights to rest up at nice motels all the way through Route 66.

Highways and scenery and weather just beautiful. Took in a few side trips to the Onondaga Cave, Mo., and the meteor crater in Arizona. Very thrilling, and very educational.

Sure was nice to take the whole month of October to do this and visit everyone too. We found relatives all fine.

Glad to be back in nice sunshipe weather, and now back to our routine of life again, keeping busy until next year.

See you all then, if God will-ing.

The best to you both, and take care.

Sincerely,
Rosalie K. and Louis Winn,
Cupertino, Calif.

MORE BITS ON EARLY HISTORY OF WEIDMAN

From Vina (Rufner Flower) Bailey, we have some details of early Weidman life.

David Flower, Vina's father, was the first section foreman on the railroad here.

Okemos was in Weidman periodically at that time, coming, folks here understood, from some place around Lansing. The town of Okemos, very near Lansing, undoubtedly is named for Okemos tribe.

Vina tells us that legend has it that Okemos' camp ground was on the site of the present Capitol Building at Lansing.

The first intercity bus line out of Lansing had one bus named "Chief Okemos," Vina tells us.

CALLING ALL MESSENGER NEWS WRITERS

We're calling a meeting of all Messenger news writers for Friday afternoon, Nov. 19, at the Skinner home in Weidman.

This will be a sort of business get-together to talk about news writing and the general wonderful job Messenger news writers have always done for the paper.

We'll meet at 1.30 in the afternoon, and there's nothing highfalutin' about it--just drap in and gab with us and have a cup of tea or coffee.

In the old days, we used to have an annual news-writers' picnic in the park, but this year the summer went too fast and we didn't get it in. This meeting with Connie will take up some of the business-of-writing gabs we used to have, and will be no big thing. Just an hour or so talk and coffee or tea.

So--all you gals who write the news for the Messenger, please mark your calendars and Connie would be very pleased if you'll come and let's gab together.

It's a date?

THERE ARE BIG FISH IN THE WEIDMAN MILL POND

Last week Friday George Skinner landed a 14-pound, 36-inch pike on the Weidman Mill Pond, with hook and line, of course, and a good-sized minnow from Walt's Bait Shop.

He had to work half an hour to get the big fish to the boat for landing, but it was worth it.

George goes fishing every day on the Pond, catching everything from bluegills to rock bass to pike. Since the cold weather, panfish have about quit biting, but the pike seem very active, and there are a lot of pike in the Mill Pond.

George comes home with anything from his big catch to 22 and 21 inch smaller pike.

We've heard many times that the Mill Pond is full of small pike. Well, it is. It's full of big ones, too. And it's full of big bluegills, as George and Connie can attest. They caught them, some ten inches, before the weather colded off. In the ensuing cold, the bluegills have been slow, and the big ones are not in evidence.

But we got enough of them during the few warm days in October to convince us that there are many whoppers there, both bluegills and rock bass. We also got some specks, and once we got a good-sized black bass--all on bluegill hooks, with worm bait.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WARNS OF HUNTING DANGERS

Fishing and hunting are probably two of the most healthful activities that people can take up for recreation, Dr. E. J. Brenner, director of the Central Michigan District Health Department, said this week. However, there is also a harmful side to hunting, he pointed out. Accidental injuries and deaths from firearms are not the only hazards.

How many people over 40 have a physical examination before hunting season opens? Dr. Brenner asks. Including a heart checkup? Many men who are overweight and/or in poor physical condition expect their hearts to take on the additional work load of strenuous exercise in the field, walking many miles through snow or mud, climbing over fallen trees or up hills for extended periods of time, after having a nine or ten months' fitness campaign of sitting behind a desk.

As all good athletes know, over exertion of a muscle which is in poor condition can lead to a lame back or sore arm. Your heart, says Dr. Brenner, is also a muscle, which needs a relatively long period of adjustment before it can adequately function in the hard task a hunter must meet. Use moderation and good judgment when hunting, he urges. Carry back the game you catch, but don't be carried back yourself.

Carbon monoxide is another hunter's hazard. Sportsmen, beware of the silent killer--colorless, odorless carbon monoxide gas--produced whenever any kind of fuel is burned, Dr. Brenner warned. Death stalks from improperly vented heaters in hunting cabins and fishing shacks. Be sure all appliances, especially gas refrigerators, stoves and heaters are checked annually and are vented properly. Do not be the unsuspecting victim of carbon monoxide gas.
